ROCKPOOL BAR & GRILL HOUSE RULES

Best manners and temperance are expected at all times

Don't look fiercely at people, or talk loudly or harshly, but cultivate a smiling countenance and a quiet, but firm tone of speech

Gentlemen, don't approach ladies; and if you are so lucky to have one approach you, endear her as you would your mother

No hooting, no hollering

Don't bring yourself into prominence before a crowd at the bar.
Be polite and approachable, but let them advance to you

Gentlemen, don't interrupt or join any conversation, but if it is general you may seem interested

Leave your attitude, with your hat at the door

Back slapping after six drinks should be tempered with mercy

Remember, nothing is on the house but the roof

Our selection will be an ever changing one. We strive to keep it fresh and up to date, all the while challenging your palates to try something new.

With over one hundred whiskies, thirty rums, thirty tequilas, and plenty more behind the bar, our shelves are still very much growing.

The first records of distillation come from Babylonia in the 2nd millennium BC, using earthenware pots, using the resultant liquor in perfumes. By the 3rd century AD, the Alchemists in Egypt had begun using their primitive distillates for sublimation or for colouring metals. Further down the line, during the 8th and 9th centuries, there was a further push by the Persian Alchemists to search for the recipe of the ‘water of life’: a supposed cure-all, and the key to eternal life. What they found was some harsh, high alcohol spirits that got them hammered. Nothing else! The term ‘water of life’, however, lived on, through Scandinavia (aquavit), the Roman Empire (aqua vitae), France (eau-de-vie), and in the Gaelic nations (uisce beatha in Scotland or uisge beatha in Ireland, the origins of the word ‘whisky’). One victory for the Alchemists of the Middle East was Geber’s invention of the Alembic (or ‘pot’) still in the 8th century AD.

In the 12th century AD it had reached Europe, the first records written in code, and found in Southern Italy. Burnt wine or brandewijn (brandy) was first documented in Germany in 1437, but these were crude at best, sometimes being up to 95% alc./vol. The distilled beverages of the 15th century had taken on medicinal purposes, primarily in the fight to ward off the bubonic plague or “Black Death”. It was from around this point that distillation as we know it was born, as each of the countries of Europe developed their own distilled beverages: Genever of the Netherlands, Gin and whisky of the United Kingdom, Grappa of Italy and so on.

One of the greatest advances of modern distillation came in the late 1820’s, in the form of the continuous, patent, or Coffey still. This still, patented by an Irishman named Aeneas Coffey in 1831, behaves like a series of single pot or Alembic stills, and whereas a pot still is time consuming and creates a heavy spirit of around 35–50% alc./vol., the column still can produce a spirit as high as 96%, thus making it far more economical, time-efficient and also creating a lighter spirit, previously unachievable using traditional techniques.

VODKA

Vodka is perhaps the most simple of all spirits, made for hundreds of years throughout Eastern Europe. Vodka may be made from any source of starch, though it is most commonly made from wheat or rye – which is malted and mashed, then left to ferment. The ferment is then run through a still several times, to higher and higher strengths of alcohol, evaporating all impurities (otherwise known as congeners) until it reaches a sufficient purity. It is then filtered and watered down to around 40% alcohol, ready to be mixed with anything and everything.

Derived from the Dutch spirit Genever, this famous incarnation made its way across the English Channel to ravage 1700's London. In what became known as the "gin madness", the British public took to this new elixir with unbridled enthusiasm. A legend was born. Gin is made by infusing a grain alcohol with botanicals such as juniper, citrus peels and various other flavourings and re-distilling by various means. While juniper is the predominant flavouring, each brand has their own special recipe using all sorts of other botanicals.

The gins stocked in our bar can be grouped into five categories: London Dry, Plymouth, Old Tom, Genever and Distilled. The London Dry style is a crisp, citrus and juniper-lead gin. Distilled gin, a relatively new category, often introduces interesting aromatics to their makeup, such as fresh grapefruit zest, cucumber and rose petal. The Plymouth style, from Plymouth, in the south of England, is a softer, smooth gin, with a slightly oily mouth-feel, purported to be the original gin used in the Dry Martini. Old Tom Gin is a botanically-intensive and lightly sweetened style of gin that was particularly popular in the 18th Century and was the "gin of choice" in the 19th Century. Known as the "original gin" made from distilling malt wine, Genever is sweetened Dutch gin dating back to the 16th century.

WHISKY & WHISKEY

SCOTTISH SINGLE MALTS

A single malt whisky is one that is produced only from malted barley at one single distillery. The great beauty of malt whisky lies in the fact that there are so many different styles and flavour characteristics within the category.

LOWLANDS

30ML

These tend to be light in body with soft grassy notes, some sweet fruit and a lovely maltiness. They make nice aperitif whiskies; can be easy introductions to the novice malt drinker, or for those wanting a complex, soft but ethereal malt.

Speyside is the most famous sub region of the Highlands, which has the highest concentration of malt distilleries. Over half of all those throughout Scotland in fact. Because they cover such a wide region, the styles vary greatly, but quite often they tend to be light to medium bodied, showing grassy and floral notes, dried fruit and heather honey, backed up by tones of orchard fruits and spice.

From just across the water comes a completely different dram all together: The Irish Pure Pot Still. Made in just a handful of distilleries these days, the Irish were responsible for one of the liquor industry's greatest breakthroughs: Continuous Distillation. This meant that a spirit could be produced faster, in higher volumes and with greater purity than its counterparts to the east. The result is a lighter, malty, smooth and at times honeyed spirit.

Bourbon takes its name from Bourbon County, Kentucky, once the major transshipment site for distilled spirits heading down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans. Barrels shipped from its ports were stamped with the county's name, and Bourbon and whiskey soon became synonymous. A Congressional proclamation issued in 1964 declared bourbon an “All American Product”, whereby strict laws governing its production came into force. 51 percent of the grain used in making the whiskey must be corn; must be aged for a minimum of two years in new charred oak barrels and nothing can be added at bottling except spring water.

Van Winkle ‘Special Reserve’ 12y.o. Frankfort, Kentucky 139

Aged twelve years, Van Winkle Special Reserve embodies the balance of maturity and smoothness that defines the family name. Bottled at 90.4 proof, it carries the depth of well-aged bourbon with an elegance few can match. Highlighted by light aromas of dried mango, cocoa, fruit and spiced peach. Flavours of honey, oak and tobacco dance on the palate. The finish is balanced and dry, with a lingering tingle.

Pappy Van Winkle’s ‘Family Reserve’ 20y.o. Frankfort, Kentucky 294

Aromas of raisins, maple, cherry and vanilla oak. A smooth and complex whiskey with flavours of dried fruits and cinnamon. The finish is long and elegant; with a wonderfully smooth and rich palate.

Weller ‘William Larue Weller’ Frankfort, Kentucky 94

Uncut and unfiltered, this hand-bottled bourbon is barrel proof. Weller substitutes wheat for the traditional rye grain, a production method pioneered by W.L. Weller. Fragrant scents of caramel corn, new leather, plums, light toffee and pipe tobacco. The palate tastes of marshmallow, salted almonds, nougat, figs and dates. This whiskey finishes smooth, composed and flavourfully sweet.

Woodford Reserve ‘Master’s Collection – Sonoma Triple Finish’ 49

Sonoma Triple Finish is a unique blend of Woodford Reserve that has been finished in Sonoma County Pinot Noir, Brandy and former Bourbon barrels used to age red wine. Sonoma Triple Finish is a rich, fruity, vanilla and spice-forward expression of Woodford featuring big, bold, red and dried fruit flavours along with dark chocolate and baking spice notes.

NORTH AMERICAN WHISKEY – RYE WHISKEY

30ML

In the United States, rye whiskey is, by law, made from a mash of at least 51% rye (the other ingredients of the mash are usually corn and malted barley). Rye whiskey was the prevalent whiskey of the North-Eastern States, especially Pennsylvania and Maryland, but largely disappeared after Prohibition. Rye whiskey has fortunately come of age once again.

AMERICAN SINGLE MALT

3 OML

American Single Malt Whiskey is defined as whiskey made in the US at a single distillery, with a 100% malted barley mashbill, aged in new or used wooden barrels, distilled at a maximum of 160 proof from either pot or column distillation, and barrelled at a maximum 125 proof. The flexibility in allowance for new or used casks, and woods beyond oak, leave greater flexibility than other American categories, and even Scotch.

CANADIAN WHISKY

3 OML

Canadian distillers make predominantly rye-based whiskies. Unlike their counterparts south of the border, the classic method of Canadian whisky production is to blend the rye (although they don't use rye exclusively) with a neutral grain-based spirit. The distillers can also use sherries or assorted fruit wines to bolster their particular flavour profile. The resultant spirit is smooth, with a lighter body, than the spicy complex American rye style.

Even though the Caribbean is undoubtedly the spiritual and cultural home of rum, the category has no appellation and can therefore be made anywhere that sugar cane is grown. Molasses– the fermentable by-product of sugar production, is believed to have first been discovered by the slaves who worked the cane fields of the Caribbean soon after Columbus brought the first cuttings of the grass to Hispaniola, present day Haiti, in the late 15th century. Today rum is recognised as a hugely versatile product perfect for sipping straight, or in your favourite cocktail.

Born from the French settler's desire to create yet another fine spirit to call their own, Rhum Agricole puts to use knowledge of distilling techniques used in Cognac production. TEQUILA

30ML

Despite the popular myth that tequila is made from the juice of a cactus, it is actually made from the distilled juice of the blue agave. The heart of the plant, known as the piña, is the main source of the fermentable sugars necessary to make tequila. Working in the Mexican sun with a spade sharpened like a knife, the Jimador cuts away the leaves to expose the pina (which can weigh up to 200 pounds). Tequila is categorised by the level of agave it contains and the amount of time it is aged, whereby 100% Blue Agave is regarded as the finest. Silver tequila, also known as Plata or Blanco, is generally aged for less than 3 months and bottled immediately. Those silver tequilas that are 100% agave show the true flavour components of the plant more than any other tequila category – peppery, spicy and perfect for cocktails. The aged varieties exhibit more complex spice and richer flavours; Reposado (meaning ‘rested’) and Añejo (meaning ‘aged’). Both take on more characters from barreling and show tones of vanilla, caramel, nut and spice.

The area surrounding the town of Tequila is dominated by Tequila Volcano, which is a dormant volcano that features fertile dark brown earth. The tequila produced from distilleries that source Agave from this area tends to be earthy, vegetal and herbaceous when bottled young.

Cognac is the most famous and revered of all the world's brandies, produced under very strict guidelines in only six designated sub regions within the area of cognac. The best ones hail from a small area in the centre of Cognac, known as Petite and Grande Champagne. However, each sub region of Cognac has its own recognisable style. Cognac is primarily made from the ugni blanc, folle blanche and colombarde grapes; it is double distilled in pot stills; and is aged in French limousin oak. The relative qualities of cognacs depend on the length of time they have been aged. No Cognac may be blended from spirits less than 2 years old. Classifications range from VS (Very Superior), which may contain brandies as young as three years old. The next is VSOP (Very Superior Old Pale) where the youngest spirit has spent at least five years in wood. Those cognacs blended from minimum six year old spirits may be entitled XO.

The rarest liquid on our back bar, this special release from Jean Fillioux is as extraordinary as it gets in the world of spirits. Bottled in 2010, the liquid has thus spent 57 years in French Oak. This long aging process has produced some incredibly rich flavours, of full dried fruits, dark honey, old sherry, overripe bananas and flowers.

A blend of Hennessy's oldest eau de vie from the 'Paradis Rare'. On the nose there are hints of pepper, leather, vanilla, spices and floral fragrances. Persistent and harmonious to the end. One of the greats.

Rémy Martin 'Louis XIII' Grande Champagne 475

A unique blend of up to 1,200 of the house of Rémy Martin's rarest and oldest eaux-de-vie from Grande Champagne. The sheer luxury and intense flavours found in this bottle have been nurtured by many generations of cellar masters since 1874. Today, Cellar Master Baptiste Loiseau is setting aside the finest eaux-de-vie as a legacy for his successors over the coming century. This cognac is quite simply described as "a moment". Notes of wild mushrooms, mint, gingerbread, cigar, plum, honey, jasmine and a distinctly waxy mouth feel. It will make you fall in love with cognac again.

ARMAGNAC

30ML

Armagnac hails from the Gascony region in south west France. There are three main areas of production within this region – Bas Armagnac, Tenareze and Haut Armagnac, of which the first is considered the best. Main differences between Armagnac and Cognac include: Cognac is largely made from the ugni blanc grape whereas the base wine of Armagnac is made from several local varieties; it is aged in a local black oak and not in limousin oak as Cognac is; the continuous still is used as opposed to the pot still; it is generally more fragrant, showing more biscuit and violet characters, while also being drier because it isn't adjusted with sugar like many cognacs.

BRANDY DE JEREZ

30ML

Brandy de Jerez is made in Andalusia, near the town of Jerez de la Frontera in the southwest corner of Spain. It is predominantly used for fortifying the wines they are so famous for, Viños de Jerez, or sherry. Most Brandy de Jerez uses grapes from other regions, as the local grapes are too valuable, and are solely used in sherry production. The brandy is distilled, then shipped to Jerez where it is aged in used sherry casks in a solera system similar to that used for sherry wine, for a minimum of 6 months, and often up to fifteen years.

Grappa is the national brandy of Italy. It is distilled from the skins, pips, and stalks of grapes. Sometimes known as Pomace Brandy, young grappa is very fiery, but it mellows when matured in wood. The French also produce a pomace brandy, known as Marc. This method of brandy making spread throughout neighbouring Central Europe.

PISCO

30ML

Pisco is South American brandy but is probably more akin in flavour and body to white tequila and possibly Cachaça. Debate still rages as to whether its origins lie in Chile or Peru, its two main centres of production. Its etymology lies in the Quechuan Indian language of Peru and Bolivia, and from the traditional terracotta pots used for aging the spirit, also called Piscos. Made from aromatic varieties of muscat grapes, Peruvian Pisco stays as true to tradition as possible, nowadays aged in stainless steel vats, so that oak plays no part in the aging process, resulting in a clear clean and pungent spirit, perfect for mixing with a wide range of fruits and juices.

BRANDY

CALVADOS

30ML

Calvados is a French brandy made from distilling apple cider. The Appellation Contrôlée is situated in Normandy, North West France, within which the Pays d'Auge is the principle region of production, along with the Domfrontais, whose Calvados distillate is also based on up to 30% pear cider.

APPLEJACK

30ML

Applejack, the lesser known spirit to have its roots in Colonial America, and in essence the only true American spirit, is a brandy made from apple cider. The distillers employ freeze-distillation (known as jacking) to concentrate and remove all congeners and impurities, and it can at times also be fortified with neutral grain spirit. When this neutral grain spirit is not added, it is known as Straight Apple Brandy. Known as "Jersey Fire Water", The Laird family recipe, originating in 1698, was a favourite of George Washington.

EAUX DE VIE

30ML

Eaux de Vie is a French term meaning "Water of Life". It is a colourless fruit brandy produced by means of fermentation and double distillation. Spirits of this type may come from Hungary, Germany, Scandinavia or any country that grows appropriate fruit for fermentation and distillation. Not typically aged in oak, the product retains the freshness and aroma of the parent fruit.

SAKE

JUNMAI

60ML / 720ML

Junmai sake, often referred to as “pure rice sake,” is made using only rice, water, yeast, and koji mold. Sake has been an integral part of Japanese culture for centuries, playing a role in religious ceremonies, festivals and everyday life. Junmai sake, with its pure and traditional brewing methods, is often seen as a symbol of the sake-making craft.

JUNMAI GINJO

60ML / 720ML

Junmai Ginjo sake rice is polished to at least 60%, which means more of the outer layers are removed, resulting in a lighter and more refined flavour profile. The brewing process for Junmai Ginjo sake involves lower fermentation temperatures and longer fermentation times, which help to develop delicate aromas and nuanced flavours.

SAKE

JUNMAI DAIGINJO

60ML / 720ML

Junmai Daiginjo is a premium style of sake that are brewed with rice that's milled to no more than 50% of its original size. The more polished rice grain means daiginjo sakes offer the most complex flavor profiles and most prominent fragrances of all varieties. To qualify as a Junmai Daiginjo, no alcohol can be added to the brew after fermentation.

UMESHU

60ML / 720ML

Literally translated, Umeshu means plum alcohol, made using a base alcohol, plums and sugar. Usually referred to as 'plum wine', they are typically quite sweet, and their depth of flavour can vary quite a lot depending on how long they have been aged. Most Umeshu sits around 10% - 15% alcohol and are considered to be extremely smooth and easy drinking.

NIGORI

Records exist as early as 300AD note that Japanese rice farmers produced an alcoholic rice drink that provided nourishment and satisfied their thirst. This was the Japanese farmer's version of moonshine. Years later and with a more refined form of production, this became Nigori, widely known as 'the cloudy sake'. This is due to an unfiltered style, which results in a sweeter and fuller bodied experience.

Aromatized wines, or Vermouths, are red, white or rosé still wines that are fortified with brandy and then flavoured with botanicals. The precise recipe for the botanicals in any particular vermouth is a well-protected industrial secret. Creative ancient alchemists found that the alcohol in wine preserved the medicinal properties of herbs and roots, for example wormwood (etymology stems from the German wormut meaning wormwood). In this way they developed some of earth's first medicines that could be stored or transported. But even before that, vintners who hadn't quite fine-tuned their craft were forced to be practical; they made their sour wines more palatable by the addition of some honey and wild herbs or whatever was plentiful and at hand. There are loosely three differing styles of Vermouth. Dry: otherwise referred to as French Vermouth; Sweet: often referred to as Italian, Rosso or Red Vermouth; and Bianco, a semi-sweet variety.

APERITIF

Aperitif is a term usually used to refer to an alcoholic drink served to stimulate the appetite before a meal. This French word is derived from the Latin verb aperire, meaning to open. Aperitifs, primarily originating in Italy, became common place all over Europe by the mid-18th Century, and had quickly spread west across the Atlantic. The origins of the modern-day American Cocktail, first documented in the United States in 1806, also owe themselves to this category of liquor.

During the late 18th Century, absinthe was very much de rigueur amongst French bohemian society. Absinthe is a highly alcoholic beverage containing aniseed and wormwood, Artemisia Absinthium, a hallucinogenic herb that lead to the downfall of Vincent Van Gogh, among many others. The volatile nature of absinthe was clearly illustrated by the fire at the Pernod factory in August 1905 that took four days to extinguish, one of the protagonists of the temperance movement leading to the ban of absinthe in 1915, a ban that lasted up until the 1990's in Australia. In 1932, without the aniseed elixir to sate his needs, the industrious Paul Ricard created a new wormwood-free subspecies of liquor: Pastis. Most popular in the southern regions of France, in particular Marseilles, modern day pastis is mainly flavoured with star anise

A digestif is an alcoholic beverage designed to be drunk after a meal. The term digestif can be wide sweeping and generic, often overlapping the sections outlined in this menu, with common digestifs being Cognac, Grappa, Eau de Vie and even aged quality Rums and Tequila. Some liquors, however, are taken specifically for their calmative qualities, and their abilities to aid digestion after a meal. Often these contain higher levels of alcohol and are quite herbaceous and often bitter/bitter-sweet, commonly referred to in Italy as Amari, and others have high levels of sugar, with a smooth, velvet-like mouthfeel.

These sweeter styles of digestifs can also be categorised as Proprietary or Generic Liqueurs. Proprietary Liqueurs are those that are made by one specific company, often to closely guarded and ancient recipes, of between 15% and 55% alc./vol. Generic Liqueurs are often higher in sugar and lower in alcohol, and have a fruit, herb or nut base.
